Central High School / Grand Rapids High School Collection

Collection # 178

October 2009 version

Abstract

In 1979 a history class at Central High School in Grand Rapids, Michigan spent a year digging into their school's history. The project was started by teacher Ed Merizon and was supported academically from throughout the community. Central High School, also known in the early years as Grand Rapids High School, was opened in 1859 and remained the only high school building in Grand Rapids until Union High School was built in 1897. This collection includes a comprehensive set of the Helios, the school newspaper turned yearbook, as well as a number of photographs of such things as sports teams, students, and faculty members. There is also alumni information, newspaper clippings of sporting events and programs for commencement and spring musicals. There are also a number of scrapbooks that contain information from the late 1880s through the early 1920s. The collection spans 1870-1988 with a bulk of information detailing the years 1979-1980. Some small accessions of related materials have been attached to this collection since it was originally received, including reunion materials for the Classes of 1926, 1986, 1991 & 1993, and a 1913 publication by Grace F. Ellis. However, since the formation of the generic GRPL High Schools Collection, #316, other Central High and Grand Rapids High School materials, not originally received with this collection, can be found there.

History

Central High School (also known as Grand Rapids High School) was opened in 1859 and remained the only high school in Grand Rapids until Union High School was built in 1897. The original structure was known as an old stone schoolhouse and the limestone for this building was extracted from the Grand River bed. The second building was constructed in 1867, was heated by steam and used gas lighting. The third building was erected in 1893. The high school used both the second and third buildings to house its growing student body through 1910. From 1911, the high school was housed in its current building. Grand Rapids Junior College, founded in 1914, was initially also housed in the current building.

Central High School graduated its first class in 1862. This class consisted of 13 girls, since the boys had all left for military service in the Civil War. When Union High School opened in 1897, students attended Union until tenth grade and then attended Central High to complete their studies and graduate. This went on until Union graduated its first class in 1912.

In 1979, a history class at Central High School took on the task, with the guidance from history teacher Ed Merizon, of documenting Central High School's history and their work produced this collection. Due to their efforts, there is a nearly comprehensive collection of the Helios newspapers, as well as a number of photographs, alumni information, newspaper clippings and programs for various events. There are also a number of scrapbooks that contain information from the late 1800s through the early 1920s. This different group of information will be explained and described in the scope and content section.

Scope and Content

The Central High School collection contains a number of different series. There are photographs, newspaper clippings, examples of school work, school newspapers, alumni notes and scrapbooks. The school newspapers chronicle a large time span, while many of the other things concentrate on either the late 1800s to early 1920s, or the mid to late 1970s and beyond. Because of the class project there is a bulk of information involving 1979.

This series includes ledger books from the Agona Club, the first club organized in Central High School, dating from 1924-1954, a class account book noting class dues from 1939-1942, the meeting minutes of the Board of Control for 1921-1934, and monthly reports, four books, from 1894-1899. These books can be found in their respective boxes.

Series V. History Papers, 1878-1979.

This small, but interesting series contains a partial history of the Central High buildings and a history of the school written for the Helios from 1892-1907. There are also two hand written histories chronicling the high school days of Arthur Dennison from 1878 and the memories of Lucile Meyering from 1918.

Series VI. Newspaper Clippings, 1918-1980, n.d.

This series is divided into four groups. The sports news clippings include a bulk of information on 1979 and 1980. The graduation news and awards group includes information on various scholarships and alumni doings. The social news follows the argument for more funding for Central High in its later years. The miscellaneous group includes information on the death of football player Gordon Scott, teacher Emma Cole, and principal Jesse B. Davis.

Series VII. Photographs, 1890-1979, n.d.

The photo series includes a number of different images. For the most part, the photos are of the early 1900s and a few are from the late 1890s. The photographs are divided into a number of categories. The sports photos include 1895 track and football teams and the 1890 baseball team. There are photos of the school buildings and classrooms. There are a number of photos of the various trophies and memorials including the Julius Houseman Field memorial rock. There are photographs of some reunions, the school's 100th Anniversary, school play casts, the 1907 faculty (names included), and the school's House of Representatives that Jesse Davis started. Photographs of Betty Ford's visit are also available as well as the history class of 1979. There are a number of miscellaneous photos as well as some slides and some negatives.

Series VIII. Programs, 1909-1979, n.d.

The program series includes programs from a number of various class functions. The programs span a wide range of dates from the Class Day Exercises of 1909 through the Class plays of 1980. The programs include class banquets, variety shows, music programs and some miscellaneous programs including the Michigan State Basketball Champs of 1911 and a memento of School Days in 1899. The programs are arranged chronologically by grouping.

For additional programs, see Coll. 316.

Series IX. Scrapbooks, 1890-1980.

Detail the late 1880s throughout the 1920s. Included in this is the scrapbook of Sarah B. Goodman from the class of 1870, and A.J. Volland, principal and teacher from the 1890s, who collected school notes and pamphlets. Another large group is the 1970s and 1980s which includes a number of sports news clippings. The scrapbooks can be found in their respective boxes.

Scraps of Cavalier Life, 1919-1938, has been added, July 2003.

Additional scrapbooks related to this collection were identified during the 2000 move clean up. These have been attached to this collection, as of 12/15/2004, in new box 42.

Series X. School Newspapers, 1893-1988.

This is the largest series in the collection. There are three different newspapers chronicled: LaPlume, Every Other Week, and the Helios which is also named the Ram's Review and Rampages. LaPlume was in circulation for only a few years, 1900-1907. Every Other Week was in use for an even shorter time, 1899-1900. The Helios however spans 1893-1988 in this collection. The Helios was a sometimes monthly literary publication (publication frequencies vary by year), that evolved into the school yearbook. The newspapers are arranged chronologically.

Series XI. Schoolwork, 1915-1959, n.d.

Another small series which includes samples of work and grade reporting from different years. There is a set of Trim Bissell's 1959 English papers, Florence Hamblin's 1915 English and Physiology notes as well as growth records, recording the student's physical growth, from 1939.

Series XII. Miscellaneous, 1910-1970, n.d.
